They're disappearing because they're targeted for their ivory tusks. Next are orangutans. They're losing their habitats which are being cleared for palm oil plantations. Bumblebees are another endangered species. Pesticide use, as well as habitat loss, is thought to be causing the decline of their population. Last but not least are seagulls. They're found to have plastic in their stomachs because nearly 9 million tons of plastic ends up in the ocean each year. Now, let's search the Internet for information on other animals at risk of extinction.
